Report on

Three Days Workshop on Ability to Multitask and Work under Pressure

Aim:- To retain the employees in Private sectors & to sustain the pressure at work place.

Introduction:-

The power of positive thinking is real. American philosopher and psychologist William James once said, "the greatest weapon against stress is our ability to choose one thought over another." Believing this to be true, wouldn't you want to focus on a positive thought instead of a negative one? Eliminating stressful thoughts is critical because they can build up over time, resulting in a meltdown or panic attack. Thoughts are known to repeat themselves, and it's key to come up with a plan to combat them. Plus, ask yourself... What's the worst thing that can happen? More often than not, the worst case scenario isn't as horrific as you're letting yourself feel.

Valuable Tips:-

Avoid negative people

Do your best to avoid those that drain your energy and put out bad vibes. The doom and gloomers. They spread negativity like wildfire. You are in control of your thoughts and emotions, but it's much harder to stay calm when you're surrounded by anxious, cynical people. Do your best to keep your distance from pessimistic colleagues, especially before a big deadline.

Focus on one thing at a time

Once you are in a positive frame of mind, focus on the task at hand. Humans are terrible at multitasking, so managing your time and prioritizing is critical to productivity. Remember—if you slow down and get present, you can fully engage in each task, which often translates into higher performance (versus a bunch of unfinished, imperfect projects). It's super easy to get distracted, so retrain your brain to respond based on a schedule rather than spontaneous cues, like a "ding" in your inbox. Silence phone and email notifications when you need to focus. (This means staying off social media, too!) University of California information scientist Gloria Mark found that it takes an average of 26 minutes to recover from trivial interruptions. Think about what you could do with those 26 minutes that you just lost.

Induction Training Program for Non Teaching Staff

Aim:- To uplift the level of the entrants to an elevated stage, promote all-round development and exposing learners' stigmas to minimize and to maximize their learning.

Introduction about the Seminar :-

The induction program was brought in with a view to uplift the level of the entrants to an elevated stage, promote all-round development and exposing learners' stigmas to minimize and to maximize their learning. Learners come with diverse thoughts, backgrounds & perceptions. Hence it becomes important to help them adjust to the new environment & inculcate the ethos of the institution with a sense of larger purpose. That is where the lacuna lies which demands a program dynamic enough to address the issue. IT Department of TGPCET has organized a induction program with an objective to provide ample of time and a platform for the transition of students from school to the hard-core engineering. An induction programme is a harbinger of various in-campus & off-campus activities specially designed for entrants to fill the gap.

Objectives of the Seminar::-
 ➢ To provide ample of time and a platform for the transition of students from school to the hard-core engineering.
 ➢ To build strong relationships with faculty, advisers and peers
 ➢ To focus on ethical behavior and moral fortitude
 ➢ To nurture a deeper understanding of the local and global world and our place at as concerned citizens of the world
 ➢ To provide adequate foundation in the core applied science subjects and english limited to moderate level

Benefits of Seminar:-

Mobility of teaching and non-teaching staff is one of the core activities in the inter-university cooperation, which aims at promoting the European dimension and quality in higher education, especially among non-mobile students. By receiving teaching and non-teaching staff, within this framework, students have the opportunity to benefit from new knowledge and skills.

Outcome: -

➢ Entrants were able to display confidence and successful transition into a new academic environment.

➢ Entrants were able to utilize primary resources and facilities of the institute.

➢ Entrants were able to establish positive acquaintance with their peers, faculties, and institute as whole.

➢ Entrants were able to attach moral values and behaviors with the practices of the institutional activities.
